GECAS Delivers AEI's First-Ever 737-800 Converted Freighter to Ethiopian

GECAS has delivered AEI's inaugural passenger-to-freighter converted 737-800 to Ethiopian Airlines, national flag carrier of Ethiopia. Completing the conversion of the prototype aircraft in December, Aeronautical Engineers Inc (AEI) has now received the supplemental type certification (STC) from the US Federal Aviation Administration for their 737-800SF.

"We congratulate the AEI team in obtaining the FAA STC approval for the converted 737-800SF and honored to supply this inaugural aircraft to Ethiopian Airlines," said GECAS Cargo' SVP and manager, Richard Greener. "This conversion program is a key component to our ability to give customers' choice and meet the growing needs in the expanding air cargo markets. The collaboration between GECAS and AEI has yielded additional capacity and efficiencies afforded by the Next Generation aircraft and will deliver a significant benefit to freighter operators."

A regulation that will liberalise the aviation industry is in the making and has reached the Office of the Attorney General for legal review.

Drafted by the Ethiopian Civil Aviation Authority, the draft regulation is expected to relax investment bottlenecks in the air transport sector, including lifting the 50-seat limit on private aircraft.

If approved by the Council of Ministers, the bill will enable citizens to participate in domestic and international flight operations, maintenance and aircraft repair, consultancy service, aircraft design and manufacturing, education and training, import, distribution and leasing of aircraft parts.

Ethiopian Airlines to double flights to China's Guangzhou

Source: Xinhua | 2019-03-03 22:37:07 | Editor: yan

ADDIS ABABA, March 3 (Xinhua)— Ethiopian Airlines (ET) plans to double its flights to the Chinese city of Guangzhou, an Ethiopian official said on Sunday.

ET Managing Director of International Services Esayas Woldemariam told Xinhua that the flag carrier plans to fly to Guangzhou twice a day, up from once every day now.

The airline currently operates one daily passenger flight each from Addis Ababa to Guangzhou and Beijing, and three-times-a-week passenger flights to Chengdu.

It also operates daily passenger and cargo flights to Hong Kong and Shanghai.

ET was the first African airline to start flight services to China, back in 1973.

"From October 2019, we plan to double our flight frequencies to Guangzhou, to meet the demands of an increasing passenger traffic," Woldemariam said.

The airlines is also planning to add more Chinese destinations to facilitate the rapidly increasing multifaceted ties between African countries and China, he added.

LAST week, the local skies welcomed the arrival of the restructured fellow southern African carrier, Air Tanzania.

The airline re-launched flights to Harare after close to two decades of no direct flights between Harare and Dar-es-Salaam.

To maximise on profitability, the passenger carrier is connecting Harare to Lusaka as it flies south of the African continent.

Inside Kenya Airways–KAA 'partnership' deal

Mar. 02, 2019, 12:00 am | By MOSES ODHIAMBO @aliwamoses

Chief Executive Officer Sebastian Mikosz earlier told MPs that the plan is not to merge KQ and KAA but to improve the airport's operations.

He explained that according to the plan, KQ will run the facility in a Public Private Partnership structure.

"It is to have a concession operator agreement, which means that the building and all the land will remain owned by KAA and ultimately owned by the government," he KQ boss said.

Other vibrant entities such as Fly Emirates, Rwanda, and Ethiopian airlines are reportedly almost edging out Kenya in the business.

Kenyatta intervenes to save carrier

State House last June crafted the merger plan that seeks to have Kenya Airways take over the management of key airports such as Nairobi's Jomo Kenyatta as it refashions itself to match rivals, among them Ethiopian Airlines and Emirates Group that have relied on government support to expand their reach.

Let's support KQ, KAA joint venture

Mar. 02, 2019, 12:00 am | By STAR EDITOR

Kenya Airways wants to manage Jomo Kenyatta International Airport in a joint venture with the Kenya Airports Authority, but KAA is not so keen.

The issue is being argued out in Parliament at the moment. But essentially government can decide on its own - it owns 100 percent of KAA and a controlling 49 per cent share of KQ.

Strategically KQ is vital to the prosperity of Kenya. Nairobi is an aviation hub that links to destinations all across the world. That makes Nairobi the preferred regional headquarters for international organisations and foreign companies.

Tourism stakeholders express fear over Ibom Air

by Majed Ojo — March 2, 2019, in Travels on Saturday

Practitioners in the tourism industry have given kudos the Akwa Ibom State government on the launch of its new airline, Ibom Air, owned by the state government.

They believe the airline is a welcome development in the aviation and tourism, but they are apprehensive over the ability of the state government to sustain the airline in the light of the history of failed domestic airlines in Nigeria.

The view was captured by the President, the Federation of Tourism Associations Nigeria (FTAN), who is also a former Deputy President of the National Association of Nigerian Travel Agencies (NANTA), Alhaji Saleh Rabo.

2019 Polls: INEC needs institutional reforms

– Desalegne, head of AU election observation mission

2nd March 2019 In Politics

Why can't Ethiopia adhere to the international limit of $10,000?

There are a number of countries with even $2,000, $5,000, $7,000, $10,000, depending on the country's situation. So, that is not unique to Ethiopia.

In making this law active, were you not scared that Nigerians may boycott using Ethiopian Airlines?

I don't think so. Nigerians love Ethiopian Airlines and this restriction was there for several years and they adhered to it. By the way, that restriction is that you only have to declare. Otherwise, you can take $100,000 and declare it.

Ethiopian Airlines commences city tour for transit passengers

Published 3 days ago on March 2, 2019
By Correspondents

Ethiopian Airlines has this month commenced complimentary city tour package for its transit passengers through Addis Abba, the capital city of Ethiopia and hub of the airline's operations. The city tour, which is being organised by ET Holidays, the tour operator wing of Ethiopian Airlines, takes transit passengers with six to eight hours to spare on a journey through one of the landmarks of the city, The National Museum, accompanied with a taste of Ethiopian coffee and souvenir shopping at affordable prices. The Group Chief Executive Officer of the airline, Tewolde GebreMariam, said of the service: "As travel has gone digital with our innovative technology solutions including Ethiopia Mobile App and online platforms, the huge influx of transit passengers in Addis Ababa, the world's gateway to Africa, can enjoy personalised and end-to-end travel experience."

All Women Flight for Ethiopian Airline

by Daron Bartlett — 2nd March 2019 in People & Lifestyle, Travel

I have seen companies coming up with different concepts to recognise women and celebrate them. They have done a good job no doubt but Ethiopian Airline was wowed us on this.

On the 8th of March 2019, Ethiopian Airlines will operate an all-women functioned flight on Addis Ababa- Stockholm-Oslo route on the 8th of March. The theme of the flight is "all women functioned flight to operate from the continent of Africa to meet their counterparts in Europe show the power of women to the world"

Ethiopian Airlines schools the world on feminism; plans 100% flight crew from Addis-Ababa to Norway, to celebrate International Women's Day

"Empower woman, empower the human community. The base on which the world stands is a women."

For many years, Ethiopia has been a good model for Africa and has seldom failed to show the continent the way when needed. Now, it appears the East African country not only leads Africa in certain areas but the world in general.
